Announcement was made by British Foreign Office yesterday that no Greek ships are being seised or held up in ports of the United Kingdom and that no blockade of Greek ports has been instituted.

Deen instituted.

The announcement of the Foreign Office that Greece is not under blockade is regarded as puzzling by some of the morning newspapers. The announcement is variously interpreted as meaning that Greece has yielded to the demands of the Allies or that the Foreign Office is now simply interpreting the announcement made by the British Legation at Athens.

mands of the Allies or that the Foreign Office is now simply interpreting the announcement made by the British Legation at Athens.

Reports Exaggerated.

The Times recalls its editorial of November 22, saying that the stories of the blockade were greatly exaggerated, and contends that the legation's announcement covers the possibility of such a control of Greek shipping as the circumstances may appear to warrant. The Daily Chronicie expresses the opinion that the two statements do not conflict, while the Daily News thinks that the statement of the Foreign Office complicates the situation and infers that something has happened since the legation's announcement was made to modify the situation.

The Morning Post, without speculating on the interpretation to be put on the Foreign Office's action, calls attended.

The Berlin despatch as a the could not well withdraw from Salonica or demobilize the army.

The Athens despatch, dated last Saturday, published in the Frankfurter Zeitung, to the effect that Greece had announced her intention of disarming and interning Serbians crossing the frontier, is without confirmation and is capital, according to a Berlin despatch received here to-day. This despatch rece nouncement covers the possibility of such a control of Greek shipping as the circumstances may appear to warrant.

The Daily Chronicle expresses the opinion that the two statements do not conflict, while the Baily Nesse thinks that the statement of the Foreign Office complicates the situation and infers that something has happened since the legation's announcement was made to modify the situation.

The Morning Post, without speculating on the interpretation to be put on the Foreign Office's action, calls attention to the despatch from its Athens correspondent under yesterday's date, saying: "Burning questions are still entirely unsettled between Greece and the Allies."

The despatch is dated November 11 and says that after a bloody battle in the gorge of the Rajec, a tributary of the Cerna, the French retired from a point north of Drenovo to the right bank of the Cerna. The distance over which the French retreated is not great—perhaps three or four miles—but the repulse means that they have been thrown back across the Cerna, and any offensive by them is delayed through the necessity of crossing the river again.

Germans Prepare for Long Siege-Czar's Troops on the Offensive.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. PETROGRAD, via London, Nov. 23 .-Refugees reaching here from Kovel in the province of Volhynia, near the Galiclan frontier, declare that the Germans in that district are strongly fortifying the town of Kovel and preparing for a Russian attack. They say that the German commanders have put enforced labor rules into effect in order to prepar for a long siege. Stone and comen barriers are being constructed.

Since Kovel is west of the Styr River where there has been fighting for several weeks, there is little doubt now that weeks, there is little doubt now that the Russians have been generally suc-cessful in this fighting. Judging from Russian reports and this move on the part of the Germans the tide of battle in Russia has begun to turn in this district, and the Russians have taken the offensive.

Some military observers here are he opinion that even before next spring the opinion that even before next spring Galicia may for the third time be the scene of sanguinary battles, this time with the Russians properly equipped to consolidate whatever victories they may o leave room for doubt.
